

Utilization of PSY 101 Assessment Report Evidence

9-29-09

The Assessment Report of the Pilot Study of the Behavioral Science Division PSY 101 General Education SLO Assessment Instrument for the General Psychology course option was utilized to further modify the instrument itself. Dr's Mulford and Ficklin met in July and discussed the results and the belief that students were simply confused by one of the items which assessed SLO #3. A decision was made to replace that specific item with another item rather than try to rewrite the original item. This was accomplished and the assessment instrument was thus revised.

This revised instrument was then distributed to all of the instructors of on-campus General Psychology courses for use during the Fall 2009 semester. Another item and reliability analysis will occur following the collection of data during finals week.
